Dear Mr. Lauder:

Thank you for your note and supporting material which was forwarded to my attention. I find nothing in that material which alters the opinions expressed in the editorial in question. I do, however, thank you for your attention to opinions expressed in The Telegraph.

While on subject of accuracy, your files should now show that Mr. Hamblett, to whom your communication was addressed, is no longer the president of The Telegraph Publishing Company, nor has he been for approximately five years. Enclosed is a photocopy of a page from the current Editor and Publisher Yearbook with the most recently published list of officers and staff.

Again, thank you for your attention and your interest.

Sincerely,

Jon L. Breen
